Shelter Mews

Our pets are like family members, and if they ever get lost, we want to be able to find them!

Because a lost pet cannot ask for directions, having a microchip and an ID tag on their collar can help them get home. The microchip, which is about the size of a grain of rice, gets inserted beneath the surface of your pet's fur between their shoulder blades. A shelter or vet hospital can then use a special scanner to read a lost pet's microchip and call the owner! San Diego Humane Society hosts microchip clinics to make it easy for families to microchip their pets and buy ID tags. Fadiddle, pictured here, was lost for seven months. When she was brought to San Diego Humane Society, we were able to reunite her with her family who lived 750 miles away in Salt Lake City!

Wildlife Corner

Now that summer has ended and the weather has started to cool down, this is the perfect time to get outside and explore nature.

San Diego is such a special place because we can enjoy nature in so many different ways - from the beach all the way to the mountains! Take your family out to any of our county parks, nature reserves, lagoon loops or river walks. Bring some binoculars and take a look around. If you're lucky, you may get to see some birds that only come to San Diego this time of year, like a bald eagle or this very rare purple finch!

Meet Our Staff

Meet Tiffany Hicks

Tiffany is a Guest Relations Associate and is the first person San Diego Humane Society guests talk to when they arrive! She helps people in many ways, including showing them where to find the animals available for adoption, taking in stray and lost animals and licensing and microchipping their pets. Whenever someone finds their missing pet, she always suggests they purchase a microchip. Tiffany's favorite part of her job is reuniting lost pets with their families!

Lend a Paw

Host a bake sale or lemonade stand in your neighborhood, school, community center, or one of our campuses to raise money for the animals at San Diego Humane Society. Make animal-themed baked goods or yummy dog biscuits for neighborhood dogs! Spread awareness and have fun while helping animals!
